Bolsonaro Pushes Back Against Election Fraud

Brazil

This discussion of conditions in Brazil and their slide towards Martial Law is a TTP exclusive and is based on the personal observations of associates and insiders throughout Latin America. Readers will note that there is almost a media blackout of Brazilian events throughout the United States. – MR

Five weeks ago, Brazil held its presidential election between incumbent Jair Bolsonaro and communist scumbag Lula da Silva. The results were tabulated using Dominion voting machines in the big cities and favored Bolsonaro until a sudden nationwide pause in counting. When counting resumed, many votes for da Silva were logged. It appeared that the communists won the election.

with soldiers entering the massive shantytowns, known as favelas, throughout the state of Rio and cities such as Rio de Janeiro, Sao Paulo, Brasilia, and others. The military is on the ground and taking action in many countries.

The Brazilian military is disabling the PT Party's proxy army of urban gangs, thugs, drug lords, and other organized crime elements. This is a big problem for the left as they have been unable to launch and sustain riots and looting under the war cry of protecting the rainforest. Rainforest lives matter or something like that is the communist media campaign that was to coincide with street riots.

Instead, millions of everyday Brazilians are protesting the election fraud.

Real men still live in Brazil.

Until the past week, the police and military were prohibited from entering the favelas because the left did not want them there. Communists spent considerable time and resources building a revolutionary army and equipped them with clubs and the makings of Molotov cocktails.

However, with swift and effective military intervention, the massive protests are peaceful. The thugs have stayed in the favelas or been arrested. Some have been killed.

This military intervention supporting the constitution is similar to the 1964 coup, which eventually led to a dictatorship that had to be removed. Back in 1964, it was to stop Castro and his communists from taking over Brazil through ballot box stuffing and election fraud.

Lula was a close ally of the late Castro throughout his life. Maybe not quite Castro's lovechild, as is Justin of Canada, but still a very intimate partner. In 1964, Brazil was seen as the key to bringing communism to South America.

At first, the people cheered the 1964 coup and martial law. Anything to eliminate communism, but it hung around too long and became the oppressor instead of the liberator.

PHASE II

The question is whether Brazil is Phase II of the war in Ukraine instead of the anticipated Taiwan.

Bolsonaro traveled to the United States three times to meet with Trump during March and September 2019, and again in March 2020. They spoke privately, and it is thought that they discussed the coming attempt by the world's deep states, aligning with Narco Finance, to extend global drug trafficking and the criminal narcostate worldwide.

now the center of global attention. It is now a dangerous place for Biden, Pelosi, or Romney to set up sham jobs for their kids in the Ukrainian gas industry. The nature of war almost guarantees a Nuremberg trial for Putin, whether in absentia (most likely) or in person. There is a strong possibility that the lid will be blown off of Ukrainian corruption.

Brazil seemed the next place for global corruption to settle in with the presence of international Narco capitalists and the heavy presence of firms such as Black Rock. Corruption potential might have something to do with Jake Sullivan, Biden's National Security Advisor, meeting with Bolsonaro in August of 2021.

As far back as the Obama administration, John Brennan was making frequent trips between Ukraine and Brazil. Ukraine has been on the overt minds of the American Deep State for some time while Brazil has been on their covert minds.

Bolsonaro met with Putin three days before the invasion of Ukraine in Moscow. Maybe this was to provide cover for the invasion, but perhaps something else is afoot. Putin had just endured the attempted Color Revolution of 2021 in Kazakhstan and remains angry over both Color Revolutions in Ukraine.

Whether Brazil is Phase II of an attack on Color Revolutions and computer-aided election fraud, the effect is the same. By striking the paramilitary thuggery that the left unleashes whenever they lose an election, Bolsonaro is maintaining stability in Brazil.

At the same time that General Graro Monteiro of the Brazilian Army announced that he was likely to invoke Article 142 of the Brazilian Constitution (martial law), Trump made a cryptic statement about suspending the America Constitution when the legitimate government was not in command. The odds of Trump and Monteiro mentioning martial law simultaneously suggest that Trump communicates with the Bolsonaro government. Trump's words implied that the United States would not react with military force while Brazil took out the trash.

This is odd, however, as Trump is not the occupant of the White House. Brazilians know better than Americans that Trump never conceded the 2020 election to Biden.

In recent years, Chile, Peru, Venezuela, Bolivia, Columbia, and Argentina have become communist countries.

This past December, Peru abandoned communism with the election of Dina Baluarte, its first woman president. She is in alignment with Italy's new Prime Minister. Just this week, she arrested former communist president Pedro Castillo for an attempted coup after she won the election. Castillo used gangs of "Andean lives Matter" thugs to burn and loot cities while the media cheered for the return of communism. Peru's military rose to the occasion and took out the trash.

With the United States and Europe in the hands of global finance, Bolsonaro is considered the last real stand against communism in South America. Peru intends to maintain its national identity, at least for now, but the big dog is Brazil. It is the logical place for global communism, the WEF, INF, and other forces under the direction of the finance cartels to strike while Ukraine commands world attention.

The current CIA director, William Burns, met with Bolsonaro in May 2022. The global players knew what was coming and maintained threats against Bolsonaro should he contest the election and thus they would endure that Lula would win. As reported in Brazilian media, the American government is threatening Brazil to prevent enactment of Article 142 and to concede the election to the Narco finance-supported global communists.

Elon Musk traveled to Brazil in May of 2022 and met with Bolsonaro. Musk appears to be a guy that likes to see things with his own eyes, as he did when meeting with Tim Cook of Apple this week.

Whether it was by accident or by plan, Musk acquired Twitter, fired the members of the Indian MAC (Multi-Agency Center) running the show there, and unblocked the accounts of millions of Brazilian citizens right before the communists rigged the election. Just a side note – the world talks about influence operations from China, Russia, the USA, the UK, etc. But the Twitter story reminds us to watch out for Indian influence operations too.

The timing could not have been better as Brazil's citizens are communicating and rising to save their nation using Musk's platform. It might be easy to forget that Musk must fight battles in other places that don't even register with American media.

Fear is always the left's tool, and the Brazilian media is trying to stoke it. Fear is why Lula prepared to unleash hundreds of thousands of thugs upon ordinary citizens.

Bolsonaro called Musk's purchase of Twitter a breath of hope for Brazil and South America. Until Musk stepped in, Twitter and the rest of social media, except LinkedIn, banned and silenced Bolsonaro as they did to Trump.

El Salvador

Salvador are reporting the military is in the streets with lists, kicking in doors and arresting people. They appear to be eliminating criminal drug and Narco finance gang members in a big sweep. The timing coincides with Brazil and is undoubtedly a considerable concern for Biden and the Democrats and our Deep State politicians that refuse to address Narco crime from El Salvador.

The head of the American DHS, Alejandro Mayorkas, is the man to watch. He is the strongest supporter of the criminal gangs in El Salvador by ensuring they have continual and growing markets in the United States. Watch him. He might be corrupt in spirit or heavily compromised by blackmail or other means.

El Salvador made Bitcoin a legal tender which enraged the WEF and INF. This might be why our government has been so hell-bent on destroying civil society there.

It looks like El Salvador has decided to take out the trash.

Blowback

Standing up to rigged elections and Narco finance is a massive blow against global corruption. The Biden administration is expected to dish out strong blowback against Bolsonaro and in support of Biden's Narco finance criminals. Bolsonaro standing firm against international criminals is a massive blow against the global Deep State.

Lula is expected to demand certification of the Brazilian election on December 12. At that time, the actual crime of election fraud would have been committed, allowing the military to enact martial law.

Watch for Biden to demand international sanctions against Brazil, launch a massive propaganda campaign, and perhaps send actual troops to support the communists. Of course, the propaganda will call Bolsonaro everything they called Trump, and there will be fake atrocity-porn and headline-grabbing demands to "do something."

Brazil is likely hunkering down to withstand the Biden administration's intervention. After all, with the world learning how to push back against corrupt elections, where will the left find a home? Arizona?

The Red Command

Narco finance's Brazilian paramilitary organization is the Red Command, and just yesterday, the Brazilian military killed its first, second, and third in command. They might be out of action for now. The left is stunned by the sudden unblocking of 1.8 billion Twitter accounts. They thought that they had global communication in the bag.

Without the fear of street chaos and global support for the so-called Rainforest Mafias, the average patriotic Brazilian is free to stand with their duly elected leaders.

Musk and Twitter are a disaster for the left, its communist political wings, and its drug-fueled global finance.

How will Biden react? How will Black Rock react? These are the questions.

One of Brazil's Supreme Court justices was arrested on corruption charges yesterday. Their court term limits justices to twelve years and assigns each judge a classification, such as economic crimes, capital crimes, etc. Their system is fundamentally different from the American SCOTUS.

Another question Brazil raises is why Obama shadowed Trump whenever Trump met with world leaders. Was Obama meeting with communists and Narco finance to disclose the discussions between Trump and their local heads of state? The left should be worried if there is a global movement against corruption, as seen in Brazil, Ukraine, Peru, El Salvador, and Saudi Arabia recently.

Twitter

Elon Musk fired James Baker, a former

FBI attorney, and the Twitter insider was fired for election interference. He was the mastermind behind the Trump Alfa Bank collusion hoax and the coverup of the Hunter Biden laptop.

Along with exposing Baker and the FBI's hand in manipulating elections, thousands of documents were released in two bad dumps. Bad.

Our government has been in the election theft business for a while. We all suspected it, but the proof is now on the table.

We have a day of reckoning ahead with all of the appointments made by illegitimate executives, and all the funding allocation and laws passed by illegitimate congressmen and senators.

How much of our government is legitimate?

This Baker bum was probably accustomed to committing crime and corruption under the protection of the FBI. However, as we have been told thousands of times, Twitter is a private company. One might think a slimeball attorney like Baker would realize that his actions at Twitter expose him to billions of dollars of damage claims including class actions from everyone on earth impacted by election fraud.

Sue the bastard into the dirt.

As Bolsonaro said, the opening of Twitter is a reason for great hope. The corruption of governments, outright theft of elections, and the hideous web between leftists and global narcotics finance is emerging. The war for the future of humanity is here. Even Democrat Senator Krysten Sinema threw in the towel today and became an independent. Let's hope more Democrats find their soul and leave the corruption behind.
